POSSES CONTINUE HUNT FOR SLAYER

ELECTION DID NOT END WAR IN DIXIELAND

SORE SPOTS WILL CONTINUE FOR YEARS

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.

(Copyright 1928, by the Escanaba Press)

Washington, Nov. 21—For most of the country the presidential campaign may have ended on election day, but for the south the battle started with renewed vigor the moment the returns showed a break in traditional party lines.

Talks with some of the prominent anti-Smith men who have been passing through here indicate that they are far from permanent allegiance with the republican party but that just the same they are not going to take silently efforts to read them out of the democratic ranks in state or even national elections hereafter.

"They'll be coming to us on bended knees," remarked George F. Milton of Chattanooga, Tenn., one of the anti-Smith leaders, when asked whether he anticipated difficulties in going back to the democratic party.

How Do They Stand?

Mr. Milton was one of the floor leaders for McAdoo at the democratic national convention at Madison Square Garden four years ago and is hardly a republican except as a protest against something democratic. He is typical, however, of some of the leaders of the anti-Smith movement in other states. Will these leaders be accepted in the democratic party without a word? Or will they be deprived of their position in the councils of the party?

Where there are national committeemen to be elected in primaries or at state conventions, the issues will be settled in the rank and file of the party. But it would be denying the facts of the situation to say that factionalism has died down with the election, or that it will not for some time to come trouble the democratic party in the south.

Reports from some southern states reveal that the election bitterness went so deep that it even affected business as well as personal relations. Under such circumstances the partisans of the anti-Smith men will probably be as active in their support as will the pro-Smith elements in opposing them. In almost every case where the bolting was done, however, the electoral vote was cast against Smith in instances where a combined republican and anti-Smith democratic vote was a majority of the state's vote. In a primary the fight will be between two elements of the democratic party and were the lines to be sharply drawn on this issue the pro-Smith groups would win out except of course in states where the republicans could enter a democratic primary.

The democrats who remained loyal to their party, however, are not eager to alienate the bolters for a substantial number, indeed a balance of power, is involved. While it is true that most of the Hoover democrats voted the democratic state tickets it also is apparent that a large number who voted the republican ticket nationally have acquired a certain independence of action which would require very little stimulus to drive them into the republican party altogether.

The task of reconciliation is

Decks of Sinking Vestris Were Picture of Confusion

OFFICER TELLS AUTHORITIES OF DISASTER

MEN REFUSED TO OBEY ORDERS OF SUPERIORS

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)—A picture of confusion in striking contrast to the popular conception of sea discipline during emergencies was painted in a federal courtroom today by Chief Officer Frank Johnson of the steamer Vestris, in telling for the second time the story of the ship's sinking nine days ago off the Virginia capes.

The release mechanism on the lifeboats failed to work in every instance, he said. Women and children were put in boats which stood the poorest chance of being safely launched, subordinate officers ignored the orders of their superiors and the crew failed to go to their assigned lifeboat stations to help in saving the passengers.

Although Johnson was on the stand for a long time when the hearing into the disaster, which cost more than 100 lives, first opened before U. S. Commissioner F. A. O'Neill, most of the testimony elicited from him today was not brought out at his initial questioning.

Release Chains Broke

United States Attorney Tuttle, who is conducting the inquiry and who questioned Johnson on his first appearance, brought out the information about the lifeboat release mechanism within a few minutes after the chief officer took the stand.

Johnson is senior surviving officer of the Vestris, Captain William J. Carey, newly appointed commodore of the Lamport and Holt Line, having gone down with his ship, jumping into the sea without a lifebelt.

"Was any effort made to use the release mechanism on the lifeboats?" Tuttle asked Johnson after the chief officer had described the apparatus.

"Yes," said the witness, a wind browned little man in seamanly blue serge. "It was not successful. In two instances chains attached to the handles which are pulled down broke."

Under further questioning he acknowledged that he knew of not a single instance in which the release mechanism did work.

When Tuttle was done with the witness the questioning was taken up by Captain E. T. Jessup, U. S. N. retired, American special nautical advisor to Commissioner O'Neil..

"Was there an officer assigned to each lifeboat?" he asked, leaning over the bench toward the witness in front of the commissioner and Captain Henry McConkey, nautical advisor appointed by the British government.

"There has been testimony," Capt. Jessup continued that some of the lifeboats had no officers in them. Why?"

"I suppose they didn't get in."

"You were chief officer, were you not, in general command under the captain. Had you no authority over your own subordinates?"

"I saw one officer coming out

Greatest Bull Market in History Crumples; 6 Million Shares Sold

BY STANLEY W. PRENOSIL
(Ass'd Press Financial Editor)

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)—A hurricane of selling orders struck the stock market with teriffic force late today, checking the "bull" movement which has been moving along with considerable violence since election day. Although the "bull" forces succeeded in staging a moderate recovery from the low levels, final quotations disclosed a long list of net declines ranging from $1 to $5 a share, and a few specialties down $7 to $20 a share.

Total sales crossed the 6,000,000 share mark for the third time but were well below the record of 6,811,900 shares established yesterday.

Because of the delay of more than an hour in the stock ticker and the fact that the brunt of the selling took place in the last half hour of trading, the market was over before most traders learned the reaction had taken place although rumblings of it became apparent in mid-afternoon. The final quotation was printed one hour and 48 minutes after the close.

Curb Market Busy

Beginning tomorrow, all sales volume of individual transaction, except at the opening, will be dropped from the ticker in the hope of greatly expediting the printing of quotations. In order to provide New York afternoon newspapers and press associations with total sales of all stocks, the New York stock exchange arranged to have a special shipment of 60 Western Union telegraph printers sent here from Chicago today, on the Twentieth Century Limited. Pending the installation of these machines, the total sales of individual stocks will be printed hourly on the bond tickers, being interspersed with the bond quotations in order not to delay unnecessarily the printing of bond prices.

Heavy trading also carried curb market transactions to a new record sales total of 2,214,600 shares, displacing the previous record of 2,151,800 shares established November 16. As on the stock market, a storm of last hour selling orders caused widespread recessions, prices generally breaking $1 to $7 per share. Oil stocks, however, held their ground. The curb ticker closed 47 minutes after the market.

SUSPECTS TO BE REVIEWED BY WOMAN

BLOODHOUNDS UNABLE TO PICK UP TRAIL

Omaha, Nov. 21—(AP)—Hundreds of police, reinforced by volunteers and bloodhounds, continued the apparently unsuccessful search for Omaha's "hatchet slayer" today. Fifteen negro suspects were under arrest but police doubted the man sought was among the group.

An all night patrol with hundreds assisting the police will be maintained throughout the city again tonight.

The 15 suspects, with any that might be picked up during the night, will be taken before Mrs. Harold Stribling tomorrow for identification. Mrs. Stribling, who is recovering rapidly from a blow on the head from the slayer's hatchet, was kept prisoner by the young negro for three hours early Tuesday and said she was positive she could identify him.

Her husband, whose skull was crushed in four places by the slayer, was operated upon late today to relieve the pressuse on his brain. His condition was reported "serious."

Rewards Total $1,775

An effort to trail the "hatchet man" with bloodhounds failed. They were taken to the Stribling home and to where the negro released Mrs. Stribling after compelling her to accompany him. They followed numerous scents, none correct.

Rewards totaling $1,775 were offered for apprehension of the slayer, who was believed to have kille an aged man and two young women here since Sunday.

Reports were received from many sections of the city during the day that the negro had been seen but each clue proved false.

Hunter Killed At Bessemer; is Third Fatality

Bessemer, Nov. 21—(AP)—A third Upper Peninsula deer-hunting fatality occurred today when Heino Soder, 23, of Trout Creek, died here of wounds received when he was shot by Louis Bregand of Detroit.

Soder was driving a wagon on a side road near Kenton, on his way home with a deer shot earlier in the day. Bregand, hunting in the woods near the road, fired at a buck and missed the animal, but the bullet struck Soder in the back. He was brought here for medical attention but died a short time later.

REPORTER REAL CRIME MYSTERY

Alleged Embezzler Refuses to Disclose His Right Name

New Orleans, Nov. 21—(AP)—Mystery today enveloped a newspaper reporter arrested last night on a charge of theft of $176,000 worth of Liberty Bonds from the First National Bank of Los Angeles.

Sitting in his cell, dry lipped and grim eyes, he astonished his callers by saying:

"If I told my real name I'd be killed. My name is not O'Hara, neither is it O'Neil. It is an honored name of Kentucky and I'd die before I reveal it."

For two years he had been known in New Orleans as Kenneth Terrance O'Hara and under that name had written for a local newspaper and sold verse published in magazines over the country. The police know him as John B. O'Neil, absconding bank teller.

"I am the man they want," he said. "They can call me what they please." The police circular says he was born in Louisville, Ky., June 15, 1891, but the man says he was born there 15, 1892.

He has a military bearing, rides like a centaur, and some months ago had his photograph taken in the uniform of a major of infantry, bearing several service bars. He speaks authoritatively of the service, indicates familiarity with New York, Boston, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Kentucky and knows intimate facts about prominent persons in these places.

"I'm guilty of embezzlement, I suppose," he said. "But the sum mentioned astonishes me. The $151,000 of bonds returned to the treasury department by a 'W. H. Frost' is mystery. It goes back to 1922 but the real story will have to go untold because I am not the only one to be considered. If I could tell the story as it actually developed, I'd be clear. If I did tell the story now, I'd be killed before I ever got into a courtroom."

So he sits in his cell while the police strive to unravel the threads of his mystery.

SCHOOL, POLICE IN JOINT CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN

Chicago, Nov. 21—(AP)—Board of education, police department and prohibition authorities joined hands today in an effort to rid the city of illicit liquor establishments catering to school children.

The campaign was launched after the shooting of a high school boy by the proprietor of one such establishment a few days ago and today had spread to every school in the city where the police were making a canvass of the neighborhood and warning all suspected merchants against allowing school pupils to gamble or drink in their places of business.

E. C. Yellowley, prohibition administrator, said his entire staff had been directed to give particular attention to "bootleg joints" near school, but denied he had received any instructions from Washington to take such a step. Benjamin F. Buck, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of high schools, said an investigation had proven unwarranted the reports that students were keeping liquor in their lockers or selling it to other students from locker rooms.

Warn Against Liquor.

Several Parent-Teacher organizations former vigilance committees to investigate conditions near their own schools and report to the prohibition authorities on suspected places. The police last night and today conducted a series of raids on soft drink parlors and other establishments catering to school children and confiscated slot machines and other gambling equipment but did not find any liquor. Several school pupils found in the places were questioned and released.

Dr. Herman Bundesen, coroner-elect, issued a warning to school children concerning the dangers of poisoning from the drinking of bootleg. The Chicago Daily Journal said that as a result of the investigation an order closing all soft drink places at 1 a. m. had been issued by the police department.

MURDER TRAIL GETTING WARM

Woman, in Hotel Where Gambler Was Shot, Aids Police

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)—A Chicago cloak model, Mrs. Ruth Keyes, spent an hour and a quarter in District Attorney Banton's office today, and after she had gone, the New York police department let it be known that the trial of Arnold Rothstein's slayer was getting warm.

Mrs. Keyes said that prior to and on the day of the fatal shooting of the gambler in the Park Central hotel, she had a drink or two with a man in room 349, the room in which the shooting occurred. She was shown Rogues' Gallery pictures and selected one as the likeness of one of three men she had seen in the room.

Police headquarters sent out word tht the man she identified was a notorious gunman with a criminal record that embraced one arrest for murder. St. Louis, Detroit and Cleveland are among the cities he is known to have visited frequently and police throughout the country have been asked to look for him.

Police Dope Crime.

Mrs. Mrs. Keyes the detectives and Mr. Banton also learned that George McManus was another man present in room 349 a short time before Rothstein was shot. McManus has been sought for questioning since an overcoat found in the room was identified as his.

The police theory now is that Rothstein got a telephone call at Lindy's restaurant on the night he was fatally shot, November 4, from a man who said he was McManus; that the gambler believed the call came from McManus; and that he went to room 349, leaving his own revolver with a friend at the eating place. This was supposedly at 10:30 o'clock.

At 10:45 o'clock, the version of the killing holds, Rothstein had a bullet in his abdomen, from which he died two days later in a hospital.

Dry Officers at Detroit Due for General Shakeup

Detroit, Nov. 21—(AP)—An announcement at Washington today that a general shake-up in prohibition enforcement forces in the Detroit district is planned was regarded here as being in line with the recent dismissal of about thirty customs border patrol agents in Detroit.

Dismissal of the agents was announced a month ago by Sumner C. Sleeper, director of the customs border patrol here, who said the action was on instructions from Washington.

Several shakeups in the personnel of prohibition enforcement oficers have occurred here in the last three years in attempts to curb the flow of liquor into the Detroit area from Canada.

Ellers Indicted By Chicago Court

Chicago, Nov. 21—An arraignment of conditions in the "bloody twentieth ward" on primary day last April was voiced today by David Stansbury, special assistant attorney general, in his closing arguments before the jury trying sixteen men for conspiracy.

Eller and his son, Judge Emanuel Eller, also were indicted but obtained separate trials. Primary day in the twentieth ward, said Stansbury, opened with the roar of a shotgun and closed with the roar of many shotguns and the snuffing out of one life. He referred to the killing of Octavious Granady, negro politician and opponent of Morris Eller for ward committeeman, who was shot primary night.

It appeared likely the defense attorneys would take most of tomorrow for their closing statements and that the case would not go to the jury before Saturday.

Meanwhile, the sixth special grand jury to investigate primary irregularities had called before it a score of policemen and police officers in its investigation of reports of collusion between politics, the police and gambling and vice interests

Man in Houseboat Keeps Police at Bay With Shotgun

Pittsburgh, Pa. ,Nov. 21—(AP)—Threatening to kill anyone who approached his houseboat in the Ohio river at Sewickley, police reported. Joseph Springer tonight slightly wounded one officer and defied a large force to arrest him of threatening a neighbor with a shotgun.

Police believed a second man and Springer's wife were on the boat. Chief of Police Harry Winrick of Sewickley said tear bombs were used in an unsuccessful effort to force Springer from the boat. Later fire was exchanged between the boat and shore, and officers said indications were that Springer had a plentiful supply of ammunition.

The siege, it was said, would be continued until Springer was taken into custody.

Breitung Township Treasurer Recalled

Iron Mountain, Mich., Nov. 21—(AP)—Stow Elliott, treasurer of Breitung township, was recalled in today's special election by a vote of 638 to 127. The vote was extremely light, being only a fourth of the ballot cast in the recent presidential election.

Elliott had sued the township for approximately $3,300 in fees, claimed by him as payment for collection of township taxes in his last terms of office. The township fought the suit, which is stil pending and the recall election today was an outgrowth of his action and designed to prevent him from collecting $4,000 in fees in December.

Musician Mayor Of San Francisco Dies Suddenly

San Francisco, Nov. 21—(AP)—Those older San Franciscans who cherish memories of days when there were more derbies, fewer automobiles and the earthquake and fire had not yet changed the physical aspect of this Bohemian seaport expressed regret today at the passing of Eugene E. Schmitz, the city's former musician mayor.

Schmitz died here yesterday of heart disease. Although in recent years he had lived in semi-retirement as a musician, he had one of the most picturesque careers of any product of this city.

He was directing the orchestra at the old Columbia theatre back in the late nineties when Abe Ruff, political boss, took a liking to him. The young musician wore a black beard and mustache and was a handsome figure. Ruff decided to make Schmitz mayor, and did.

Schmitz was elected in 1901 and in 1903 he came up for re-election and defeated H. J. Crocker and Franklin K. Lane. Lane later became secretary of the interior under President Wilson.

GLASGOW TWINS CONFUSE WITNESSES AT TRAIL

When John and Edward Burns, 17-year-old twins, were recently tried for assault in Glasgow, Scotland, so close was their resemblance that witnesses were badly confused in their identifications. The twins were charged with being in a gang that assaulted M. Arthurs. The complainer declared that John had hit him, and a witness said that one of the brothers did it, but he could not say which one it was. A photograph labeled "the Peril Gang," which was found on Edward when he was arrested, was produced, and the fiscal said that John was included in the company. Edward, however, asserted that the photograph was his property, and that he was included in the picture. John said he was present during the melee, but did not hit Arthurs, and that Edward was not there. The judge, with head awhirl, declared John guilty.

Priest Prospects by Radio

Precious metals are being discovered by a "radio" apparatus claimed to have been invented by a Catholic priest of France. "Every metal gives off a definite wavelength, and my instrument is adjusted to pick them up," the priest explains. Gold, platinum and silver will be found, it is hoped, in large quantities within a few miles of the Franco-Swiss border and in the Pyrenees. A dozen sacks, each containing a different metal, were buried at various points in a field from eight to ten feet deep. The instrument not only revealed the depths, it is said, but identified the metals.

HAPPIEST MAN MARRIES

When M. Grimault, known as the happiest mon in Nanterre, a suburb of Paris, was married recently, friends gave the popular bridegroom a fitting celebration. Grimault and his bride were conveyed to the Mairie in a wheelbarrow. Signs on it told of the approaching ceremony as friends pulled the vehicle through the streets. Grimault was compelled to wear fantastic cap, huge goggles and scarf and to carry a copious basket filled with edibles and other gifts. Other wheelbarrows carried guests.

on deck," Johnson replied, "and told him to go to his boat. He turned and walked away. What could I do?"

"Are you as a chief officer asking me a question like that?" rumbled the portly former naval officer.

Lack of Authority

Capt. Jessup then drew attention to previous testimony of other witnesses that some of the lifeboats were left hanging in the davits with none of the crew making any attempt to launch them.

"Weren't they assigned to go to particular boats in time of disaster," he asked.

"Yes," Johnson acknowledged, "bu they weren't there."

"Weren't you chief officer in charge of the whole crew?"

"I couldn't go hunting all over the ship for them."

DOOR ALWAYS OPEN.

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)—An insurance surveyor for Lloyds of London, which rated the lost liner Vestris under its highest classification, told the board of inquiry of the department of commerce today he had been informed that a working door near the water line on the starboard side of the vessel was kept open on most of the southern voyages for ventilation to the crew's quarters.

It was through these working or half doors, some witnesses have testified in the commerce department inquiry and in another before U. S. Commissioner O'Neill, that water poured into the liner and created a list to starboard before it sank off the Virginia capes a week ago Monday with loss of more than 100 lives.

Porthole Leaked

James J. Short of New York, who said he obtained his information about the door from J. Blue, third officer of the Vestris, testified that, unlike the coal ports, which also were said by some witnesses to have been leaking, the working doors closes from within. When he last examined the vessel the door was fitted properly with gaskets and packing. Other doors and lifeboats, he said, were in proper condition.

Short was one of the final witness of the day, in which the board heard from survivors that some equipment of the vessel was defective, and from officers of one of the rescue vessels that lifeboats were in seaworthy contion.

Captain Schuyler Forbes Cummings and three of his officers on the steamer, American Shipper, which picked up five boatloads of Vestris' survivors, said they found the Vestris' lifeboats in good condition.

J. B. Dovalle, associated with the Brazilian consulate in New York and a survivor, testified that the port hole of his third class cabin in the forward part of the ship leaked constantly after the ship ran into rough weather the day before it went down.

Listed at Port

Dovalle said the lifeboat in which he escaped had to be chopped from its blocks, and in this he was supported by Edward John Marvin, another survivor, who added that difficulty was experienced in getting other lifeboats away.

Carlos Quiros, chancellor of the Argentine consulate in New York, and Edward Miles Walcott, other survivors, testified they noticed the Vestris was listing when she sailed from New York.

The testimony of the survivors and their rescuers was given before a board headed by D. N. Hoover, supervising inspector general of the steamboat inspection service of the department of commerce, which is attempting to establish whether Captain Edward Keane, a hull inspector, and an assistant, were guilty of negligence in examining and passing as seaworthy the liner and her equipment five days before she sank.

DYED RACING DOG CAUSES ROW IN BELFAST SPORTS

Following a gasoline bath of the winner of a greyhound race at Belfast, Ireland has one of the greatest sporting scandals in years. The Irish Coursing club has excluded Small York, the winner, and awarded the race to Rocske Prowler, and the management of the park has barred from the grounds all who were interested in the masquerading dog. There were six starters in the sensational race. The betting was four to one on Small York in the belief that he had never run in public before. Heavy bets were placed on him. At the start the dog did not leave the box until the others had a good lead, but he won by a dozen lengths. Bookmakers refused to pay bets, and the race officials ordered the gasoline bath for the winner, which went into the tank entirely black and emerged with a white tip to its tail and four white paws.

Leaving the Maryland at Valparaiso, Chile, he will proceed to Santiago for a visit of a day and a night. Entraining for his trans-continental journey to Beunos Aires, he will spend the night at Mendoza in order to begin the trans-Andean journey in the early morning so that the run between the high mountain peaks may be enjoyed by daylight.

It is planned to stop his special train long enough for the party to disembark and to inspect the celebrated statue, "Christ of the Andes," that figure of the crucified Saviour which was erected amidst the mighty peaks in commemoration of the adjustment of the boundary line betwen Chile and Argentina.

In Good Spirits

The second night of the train journey will be spent in crossing the Argentine pampas. Beunos Aires will be reached next morning. After a day in the sixth city of the world, and the metropolis of the southern hemisphere, Mr. Hoover will board the Utah and proceed to Montevideo, Uruguay. He will have less than a day in that capital because the battleship must anchor about 70 miles out.

Turning then to the north, the party may spend a day and a night in Rio de Janiero. Other details of the route still are subject to change. It apparently is almost certain he will not visit the Panama Canal.

Mr. Hoover appeared on the deck of the Maryland today wearing a chief Yeoman's cap, white flannel trousers, white shoes and a double breasted blue coat. He was in fine spirits and continues to enjoy the voyage greatly.

The Maryland reached the fishing grounds some twenty or thirty miles off Cape San Lucas at midaternoon. Mr. Hoover eagerly was awaiting his opportunity to try his luck at deep sea fishing.

W. C. T. U. is To Take Steps Against Tobacco

Boston, Nov. 21—(AP)—The National W. C. T. U. in convention here, passed a resolution today pledging itself to continue its opposition to the tobacco habit.

The resolution was one of two presented by Miss Ida Lillian Page of Union City, N. J., director of the department of narcotics. It read:

"That the National Women's Christian Temperance Union continue its campaign of education seeking to reach the youth of America with the truth regarding the scientific effects of nicotine; that we urge strict enforcement of laws forbidding the sale of tobacco to minors; that we continue to protest against untruthful and misleading advertisements; that we appeal to the womanhood of the nation to refrain from acquiring the tobacco habit in the interest of their own health and that of their children".

Methodists Vote $3,500,000 Fund For Missionaries

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)—The board of foreign missions of the Methodist Episcopal church voted today to appropriate approximately $3,400,000 for missionary work in foreign fields during the next year.

Six Men in Launch Missing Two Days

Glace Bay, N. S., Nov. 21—(AP)—Six men have been missing in a motor launch since Monday afternoon. They left here for an unannounced destination and a heavy gale arose soon after. The cutter, Constance has been ordered to search for the craft.

SWISS TACTICS AROUSE IRE OF AUSTRALIANS

Australians are aroused over the recent report of E. Tilley, managing director of a watch case manufacturing concern of Melbourne, on his treatment while in Switzerland to buy additional machinery. Tilley says that the Association of Watch Case Manufacturers in Switzerland were advised of his intentions, and an appeal was published in a Swiss newspaper that local manufacturers should not aid foreigners to transplant the watch case industry abroad. All the firms with which he placed orders were warned that if they filled the orders they would be barred from the association. When he secured the machinery from firms outside the organization he was threatened with deportation as an undesirable trader, in the same way as three Japanese and a Canadian were deported some months previously, Tilley said.

Continued drought in the vicinity of Orsett, England, has made the ground so hard that the fall plowing matches had to be abandoned this year.

therefore not going to be easy. One lesson that the regular republicans in congress learned when they tried to read out of the party those western republicans who supported a bolting republican, La Follette, in 1924 was that in the end it doesn't pay and that more harm than good is stirred up politically by such efforts at punishment.

Many Sore Spots.

There are rumors again about reading out of the republican party such men as Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska and Senator Blaine of Wisconsin but the older heads who have had experience with bolting progressives of 1912 will probably persuade their brethren to let well enough alone. In the democratic party there probably will be some candidacies for the house and senate growing out of the feuds of the 1928 campaign. Senator Simmons of North Carolina, who supported Hoover, is very likely to have opposition two years hence if he is a candidate for re-election. Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the Navy in the Wilson cabinet, who supported Smith, is talked of as a probable opponent in the democratic primaries.

Florida with its heavy northern immigration is much more likely to stay in the republican ranks than Virginia or Texas or North Carolina but the election has left sore spots enough to keep the more temperate and conciliatory party leaders busy for the next four years.

HOOVER PLAN NOT ENDORSED

tracts by public and quasi-public authorities would remedy or ameliorate the situation in the twinkling of an eye.

"No centralization of authority is proposed but merely the creation of a condition by concerted action that shall make possible a remedy that will appeal persuasively to all. Follow the flow of those three billions to the contractor, to the laborer, to the material men, to the factory, to the factory employes, to the merchants, to the farmers. It goes like the house that Jack built and unemployment is at an end.

"Organization for prosperity is the next lesson that America may teach the nations of the world," he concluded.

Secks Crime Figures.

Sterilization of the unfit was advocated by Gov. John Hammill of Iowa.

"It is my balanced opinion that we must resort to sterilization to prevent the feeble minded and those tainted by chronic disease from filling our institutions with their offspring," he said.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor-elect of New York, telegraphed the governors from his winter home in Georgia, to adopt some method of collecting fundamental statistics with which the crime wave can be successfully and intelligently studied.

During the afternoon, Gov. John Trumbull of Connecticut, who also is an airplane pilot, took a trimotored monoplane aloft with several governors and their guests as passengers. On his first flight he was accompanied by Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman of Wisconsin and E. Lee Trinkle, former governor of Virginia.

BEFORE LABOR.

New Orleans, Nov. 21—(AP)—The proposal of Herbert Hoover to create a $3,000,000,000 fund for nationwide construction in slack times, was brought formally before the convention of the American Federation of Labor late today.

John P. Fry, secretary of the metal trades department of the federation, read the address of Gov. Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine, in which he outlined the construction plan earlier in the day at the request of the president-elect.

At the conclusion of the reading, the proposal took its regular place in the order of business but it is expected to be called up again tomorrow when the governors, who plan to adjourn their conference tonight instead of tomorrow, will attend the labor convention as private citizens.

The morning session was devoted mainly to an address by John Marchback, assistant industrial general secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen of Great Britain, who told of unemployment in the British Isles.

"Government figures," he said, "show there are 1,384,000 unemployed in the nation, but that is far from being the actual figure when all men and women and their dependents are taken into consideration. At the present time 663,503 persons are receiving poor relief and thousands are working part time and living on the border line of poverty."

When 16-year-old Mabel Kitson, who had been chosen "railway queen" by the National Union of Railwaymen of England to be their ambassador to the railwaymen of France, arrived at Paris recently, she was given an ovation by a group of French rail workers. The automobile in which she was conveyed to the hotel was a mass of floral gifts. At the Gard du Nord Miss Kitson laid one of the most beautiful bouquets at the foot of the memorial to the Northern Railway men of France who were lost in the World War. She was then presented a gold link, a reproduction in miniature of the railway couplings used in 1828. A chain will be made of 16 such links, the others being presented by the railway workers of other countries she will visit. Miss Kitson's father is a Worcestshire signalman.

GREATEST BULL MARKET BREAKS

chaige seat was arranged today at the record-breaking price of $525,000, an increase of $30,000 above the previous record established a few days ago.

Reaction is Correction

Hope of a Saturday holiday in order to permit brokerage houses to catch up with the tremendous accumulation of work vanished today when the board of governors of the exchange met, and took no action toward closing the exchange on that day.

The reaction today was generally regarded by market observers as a partial correction of some of the speculative excesses of recent weeks. It followed repeated warnings on the part of conservative commission houses and may have been influenced, in part, by the widespread publicity given to the speech delivered before the National Grange last night by Governor Roy Young of the federal reserve board. He said that "those who today in other fields are speculatively inclined, I believe, can well afford to stop and reflect.

Rumors that the bank of England may raise its rediscount rate tomorrow, forcing a return of funds loaned here on stock collateral in this country, also may have been a factor in the selling movement.

The market opened irregular today but turned upward when heavy buying was resumed in the oil shares and some of the high prices specialties. Radio led the advance with a spectacular gain of $21 to a new high record at $379 but broke quickly to $345 then rebounded to $359 for a net gain of $1 on the day.

Outlook for U. S. Merchant Marine Good—O'Connor

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)—Chairman T. V. O'Connor of the shipping board declared here tonight that though the present outlook for a merchant marine is more encouraging than for many years it is "now the turn of American shippers to demonstrate whether or not they really want an American merchant marine".

Speaking before the foreign commerce club, Chairman O'Connor said it is within the power of the American shippers "either to make or ruin" the whole project of a large American merchant marine. He was confident he added, that the decision will be expressed in terms of cargo placed in the holds of American ships.

Chairman O'Connor said that within the next year the shipping board expects to sell from eight to ten aditional lines. Bids are to be opened, he said, December eleventh for the sale of 45 wartime vessels to reduce the government surplus merchant tonnage and the U. S. lines and the American merchant lines are to be offered for sale January 15, 1929.

He declared it seems probable that 35 new vessels will have to be built within the next five years by American lines holding mail contracts under the Jones-White act.

Senator Sees New Farm Relief Bill In Next Congress

Detroit, Nov. 21—(AP)—A farm relief measure similar to the McNary-Haugen bill, but without the equalization fee, will be given to the country at the short session of congress, is the belief of Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, who addressed the Michigan Master Farmers' club here tonight.

The equalization fee, in which he still believes but which has been opposed consistently by President Coolidge and President-elect Hoover, probably will be eliminated, he said, in order to effect some sort of farm relief.

"I look for farm legislation," he said, "that will create a federal farm board, with power to determine causes and remedies which should be applied to each of the multitude of problems which grouped together constitute what is generally termed the agricultural problem."

Following Senator Capper's address several Michigan farmers were given the degree of master farmer.

Campaign Expense Small

Detroit (AP)—Four street car tickets costing 23 cents was all that William B. Campbell spent to be elected to the state legislature November 6, from the first district, he said today in his statement of campaign expenses, filed with the county clerk.

Manistique Child Seriously Hurt When Hit by Auto

Manistique, Nov. 21 (Special)—Seriously injured when she was struck by an automobile this afternoon, seven-year-old Camille Holstrom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Holstrom of this city, lies at the point of death in a local hospital. Little hope is held for her recovery.

The accident occurred when the child, who was returning home from school, crossed the street near the postoffice, and was struck by an auto driven by Grant Cameron, local plumber.

Witnesses at the scene declared the accident was unavoidable.

At the hospital the child was found to have suffered serious internal injuries, as well as numerous body bruises and cuts. Her condition was last night given as critical.

May Make Changes In Immigration Laws of Country

Washington, Nov. 21—(AP)—The possibility that legislation may be neded to correct what members believe are defects in the present immigration laws was discussed today at a meeting of the house immigration committee. Only five of the 21 members attended and no formal action was taken.

Some of those present were of the opinion that steps should be taken to work out a reciprocity plan with Canada relative to the entrance of laborers into this country, but no definite proposal was presented.

The members discussed the box bill proposing that all western hemisphere nations be placed upon a quota basis and it was indicated that supporters of this measure would again attempt to obtain its enactment this session.

Steamer, in Tow, Breaks Away and Sinks in Huron

Alpena, Mich., Nov. 21—(AP)—The steamer Thousand Islander, sold by the Canadian Steamship company to the Georgian Bay and Transportation company two weeks ago, foundered in Lake Huron this morning, after breaking loose during a gale, from the freighter Collingwood, by which it was being towed, according to Captain W. E. Crabo of the Middle Island coast guard station.

The Collingwood put in about a mile from Middle Island late today, and Captain Crabo received news of the sinking of the Thousand Islander from the master of the freighter.

The Thousand Islander was being towed to Georgian Bay when the mishap occurred. The vessel began to leak, but the Collingwood went alongside and took off the crew of 11 men. The Thousand Islander sank about 9:30, 25 miles south and 75 miles east of Thunder Island, this morning, according to the story told by Captain Crabo.

Man On Parole

Detroit (AP)—Howard Wilson, 28, who dragged Mrs. Sarah Crawford, wife of the president of a foundry company, and her daughter, Helen, 24, out of their car in front of their home here Sunday night, was placed on two years probation today when he pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery.

Morgan, Chairman of State Tax Board, to Resign Position

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 21—(AP)—John H. Morgan, chairman of the state tax commission, will submit his resignation soon to Governor Fred W. Green, effective Dec. 1, it was reported here today.

Morgan, who is in Detroit, was made auditor of the Detroit Street railway, Tuesday.

Gov. Green appointed Morgan chairman of the tax commission early in 1927 after George Lord, his predecessor, had resigned following a change in administration. Morgan before his appointment was statistician for the city of Detroit.

Morgan's successor will be named by the governor. It is understood that M. B. McPherson, of Kent county and a present member of the commission seeks the chairmanship, which carries additional pay.

Schoolcraft Man Injured Hunting

Manistique, Nov. 21 (Special)—Another accident was added to the fast growing list in the upper peninsula this season, but only the first in Schoolcraft county, when Orville Berlanger of Whitedale suffered injuries to his right forearm and wrist.

Berlanger was wounded when he removed a gun from a boat, pulling the weapon toward him, muzzle first, the charge grazing his arm. An examination revealed that he had suffered no broken bones.

See Little Hope of Settling Vare Election Battle

Washington, Nov. 21—(AP)—Little hope for early disposition of the Pennsylvania senatorial contest between Senator-elect Vare and his Democratic opponent in the 1926 election, William B. Wilson, was held out today by Senator Waterman, Republican, of Colorado, chairman of the senate elections sub committee.

Returning to Washington today, Senator Waterman said a canvass of the contest indicated there was little likelihood the senate would be able to act at the short session. This would throw the case into the hands of the new senate, with a much larger Republican majority, which meets next year.

The senator described the long-standing contest as "one of the most complex in the history of congress, and said further counting and checking of the votes in the contest are in prospect.

Mr. Vare was elected in 1926 but was denied the oath of office when he presented his credentials a year ago, pending the outcome of the contest being waged by the Reed senate committee against him on account of expenditures in his primary campaign.

Alibi Witness of Watson is Found Guilty of Perjury

Detroit, Nov. 21—(AP)—Stephen Pawlowski, alibi witness for Harry Watson, convicted slayer of Sergt. George Barstad in the Detroit News holdup, pleaded guilty today to a charge of perjury. He was remanded to jail for sentencing Friday.

Pawlowski, former Hamtramck bartender, confessed that he perjured himself on the witness stand when he testified Watson was in his saloon at the time of the News holdup. He told Judge John V. Brennan today that he did it "out of friendship" and that "no one paid me a cent."

Watson, convicted yesterday and sentenced to life imprisonment, is awaiting removal to Jackson state prison. Judge Brennan told Paylowski when he received the guilty plea today that he was subject to life imprisonment for having perjured himself.

SINGLE-TRACK IRISH LINES

"For the good of the service" the Great Southern Railways is converting a number of lines in Ireland from double to single track. One section thus effected is nearly 100 miles long. So extensive is the change that it will require two years to complete. At frequent intervals along the routes there will be loops where trains will pass one another, and so efficient will be these loops that they may do so at 70 miles an hour. C. E. Riley, general manager of the road, says that advancement in train signaling has made double tracking unnecessary, and if as much about railways was known in the fifties as now, there never would have been a double track line in Ireland.

High School Organizations Take Charge of "Roll Call" In Escanaba Business Zone

Calling the roll of Red Cross members in the establishments in the down-town districts in which no special committee delegates were appointed, will be commenced today with two high school organizations making the calls.

The Orange & Black Hi-Y club and the Girls' Motarboard society of the high school volunteered for the work and their services were accepted by R. E. Cheney, county roll call chairman.

In the larger business and industrial establishments, special committeemen were appointed to call the roll of fellow-workers and procure memberships in the Red Cross. The young canvassers, today, will begin to solicit memberships in the smaller business houses and offices of the down-town district. This work will be completed as quickly as possible. It will be followed by solicitation in the residence district.

The Red Cross window posters, which show that some member of the household is a member of the Red Cross, are making their appearance throughout the city and it is expected that hundreds of them will be on display before the end of the week. Those who join the Red Cross down-town have been asked to display the posters in their residence windows to prevent duplication of effort later in the campaign.

Memberships may also be taken at any bank in the city, where membership cards, lapel buttons and posters are being issued. Many are finding it convenient to leave their contributions—$1 or more—at the banks without waiting for the solicitors to visit them.

ST. PAUL DOCK SEASON CLOSES

Total Shipments of Ore in 1928 Amounts to 1,603,322 Tons

The departure of the ore carrier, Price McKinney, at 1:50 o'clock yesterday morning marked the close of the 1928 ore season at the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway docks here.

The last boat of the season went out with a cargo of 7740 tons, boosting the total shipments for the year to 1,603,322 tons, an increase of 40,548 tons over last years's figure despite the fact that the 1927 season closed five days later.

Shipments from the Chicago and North Western railway docks will probably end Saturday, officials announced yesterday.

The annual general repair program was started this week at the St. Paul docks, George Stoik, local agent, announced yesterday. Pile drivers and derricks are already on the job, and a crew of about sixty men will be employed during the winter months on the repair work.

Why Not Put the Half-Billion to Work?

Six thousand lives lost—a half-billion in property destroyed by fire every year! What a tragic, needless sacrifice!

Every owner pays a share of the annual half-billion loss—whether he has a fire or not. He pays it in insurance, taxes and depreciation.

Most of this loss occurs in structures of comparatively small size; common sense has forced fire-safe construction of new large buildings.

Sound financing will not always permit making a small structure completely fire-proof. But a small increase in cost will yield a large increase in fire-safety.

Competent architects say that a fire-safe first floor of reinforced concrete will increase the cost of the average dwelling about two per cent—and even less in larger structures. Statistics indicate that at least thirty per cent of residential fires start in basements. A first floor of reinforced concrete will effectually protect the upper structure against a basement fire.

Single dwellings, small apartment houses, stores, hotels, factories, warehouses, theatres, and churches can have the fire-hazard reduced to minor proportions by employing reinforced concrete for first floors, stair enclosures and other vital locations. The additional cost is surprisingly low—and the reduced fire-risk only one of the benefits.

Why not put the half-billion to work?

AMATEUR PURITY.

THE PERSISTENCE with which officers of the various organizations of amateur athletic clubs warn each other of the menace of "commercialism," sometimes almost pursuades newspaper readers to believe that the gentlemen are really taking themselves seriously. Commercialism was the keynote of the inaugural address of Avery Brundage newly elected president of the Amateur Athletic Union, in Chicago Tuesday. He is especially fearful lest college athletes who ask "What's in it for me?" before they join athletic clubs, are going to have a harmful influence on the amateur sporting profession.

Athletics will be "commercialized" just as long as an admission charge is made at the gate. College authorities, nowdays, have dropped a portion, at least of their pretense, and admitted frankly that football profits are necessary to the financing of other forms of athletics. There is nothing odious about that. It is "commercialism" which is as clean and wholesome as any of Mr. Brundage's most spotless dreams. The football player usually is glad to help earn the money to keep the school's athletic program going.

When he leaves school things are decidedly different. The fact that he asks "What is there in it for me?" plainly indicates that he has rather broad suspicions that somebody is getting something. He can't see why he should not profit by their example. The result is that he finally joins an athletic club but the answer the club gives to his question is kept a deep, dark secret, buried under great gobs of oratory about purity.

There is no such thing as a semi-amateur. An athlete is, or he isn't. There also can be no semi-commercialization. And as long as there is need for electing treasurers for athletic clubs, that awful commercialism which makes Mr. Brundage shiver so copiously will be 'round about, somewhere.

MR. BORAH SURRENDERS.

SENATOR BORAH started out, some months ago, to collect the sum of $160,000 for the purpose of refunding to Harry F. Sinclair the amount the notorious oil man contributed to a Republican campaign fund back in the dimly distant past. Mr. Borah succeeded in getting about $8,000, which was considerably more than most folks thought he would be able to gather in his broad-brimmed hat.

Mr. Borah's designs were pure and his motives high. No question about that. But the average American couldn't see how handing Harry F. Sinclair a check for $160,000 was going to hurt Mr. Sinclair's feelings. Harry may be easily wounded, but it's hard to torture an oil magnate merely by increasing his bank balance.

The senator, for some time, has been intimating that the offering was not as large as he hoped it would be. He has confessed, at last, that the task was hopeless.

The Republican party may be able to punish Sinclair. We sincerely hope so. But the punishment will not come through offering him money.

SMALL COLLEGES.

HARVARD is going to have an "inner college," a college within a college. It will be a good one, at east as far as money can make it, for an anonymous donor has given $3,000,000 for the purpose. But it is going to be a small college. This is the chief reason for establishing it.

The innovation represents a reaction in American universities. Until recently, size was considered desirable in educational institutions as in cities, business organizations and other things. But since the war our colleges have been growing so big as to be unwieldy. Standardization and mass production do not seem so well adapted to human education as to automobile manufacture. So the attention of thoughtful educators, parents and even students is beginning to turn again to the small college, with its better chance for individual development.

England has never lost this idea. The big English universities are made up of groups of small colleges, each complete in itself, with its own organization, equipment and character. American colleges, swamped with students, may be obliged to adopt a similar system.

CHRISTIAN PATRIOTISM.

IT LOOKS now as if statesmen have gone a little ahead of the people. The Briand-Kellogg treaty renouncing war is a noble ideal of statesmanship which will be valid and effective only in so far as the public in every country lives up to it.

In spite of appearances to the contrary here and there, the world has turned democratic. Public opinion rules. Peace depends on the people themselves.

Peace therefore depends mainly on the right sort of education. This means education in international friendliness, tolerance and understanding.

"The present task of the nations," said a clear-headed American minister on Armistice Day," is to develop a public conscience which will give meaning to treaties and laws regarding the outlawry of war.

"To do this we shall need to revise our ideas of patriotism and nationalism.

"Our patriotism at present is built by emphasizing our differences from other people. The time has come for us to speak; of our similarities, and to realize that beneath all surface differences there is a spiritual unity which binds together the races of men, for we are all brethren."

This is the original Christian view. If Christendom is to save itself, it must turn Christian.

HOME SCHOOL FOR PARENTS.

CHILDREN are teaching their parents a lot of things nowadays. Why shouldn't they teach 'em English? This is the way the Allied Patriotic Societies look at it in New York, and the school superintendent agrees with them.

It doesn't mean exactly that Willie and Susie are to be put up to correcting Father's and Mother's grammar. The little smart Alecks will do that, anyway, as soon as they learn any grammar themselves. The idea is a systematic effort to teach the English language to foreign-born parents by using their own children as school teachers. A home study course will be laid out, and leaflets will be provided for a series of 41 lessons.

No doubt thousands of American children would delight in such work, and thousands of parents would welcome it. This may mean a big forward step in Americanization methods.

A prisoner in Cleveland got mad at a judge and killed his cell mate in revenge. A person can't be safe even in jail these days.

CHAPTER XVI

Jerry's knees nearly caved in under her as the meaning of Myrtle's words became clear.

"I didn't steal it, Myrtle," she whispered like a frightened child. "I just borrowed it."

"Yes," Myrtle agreed. "It looks like it. That's the way people treat borrowed things alright. For Pete's sake take it off before you stand there and shake to death.

Jerry did not move. Her eyes were wide and set. To Myrtle she looked as if she was petrified with fear.

"Here," she said and began to pull the dress from Jerry's chilled shoulders. It dropped and lay in a damp, soiled ring at Jerry's feet. "Step out of it," Myrtle ordered and Jerry mechanically obeyed. Then she forced Jerry to remove the rest of her soggy garments, rubbing her briskly afterward with a bath towel.

"Now get into bed," she said, thrusting Jerry's nightgown into her hands.

"You'd better tell me all about it," she said later when she crawled in beside Jerry, who lay with her face buried in her arms on the pillow.

Jerry told her, in snatches of words broken by gasps which suppressed sobs drove from her tortured throat. Myrtle remained silent until Jerry came to the pool incident. Then she drew an arm over Jerry and sought to comfort her.

"Maybe it isn't as bad as it looks," she said hopefully. "If they let you get away with the tunic I guess it means they didn't see you take it."

"But I can't return it now." Jerry moaned desparingly." And if I don't I'm a theif."

Myrtle considered. "Can't you get the money to pay for it?" she asked.

Jerry shook her head against Myrtle's shouldres.

As they talked on into the night without reaching a solution of Jerry's problem, the conviction that she must return the dress and make a full confession or expose herself to the charge of theft, became more appallingly planted in her mind.

And there was the dreadful possibility that she wouldn't be allowed to tell the truth—that it was known already that she had taken the tunic.

By morning she was pale and hollow-eyed. Myrtle looked at her with worry in her eyes."

"Brace up, kiddo," she said encourageingly. "Mr. Barlow is big-hearted. I guess you'd better make a clean breast of it to him. Tell it the same as you did to me last night. Maybe they'll let you make it up out of your pay, or they might even wait and hold it out the next time they hand us the commissions."

Her words cheered Jerry a little. She gathered up the ruined tunic and inspected it with the faint hope that it could be cleaned and then returned. She had considered this possibility during the night.

That hope died instantly. A jagged rip was discovered in the delicate lace. It must have caught on the edge of the pool when Dan pulled her out, Jerry thought.

She wrapped it up in some crumpled tissue paper from a shoe box and put it in her felt bag. She could show Mr. Barlow how she had carried it away from the store.

The urge to make full confession and the desire to get it over with at once drove her to wait outside the door leading to the manager's private office long before nine o'clock.

"Who sent you up here?" his secretary asked when she saw her there.

"No one, it's. . . . personal, Jerry replied timidly.

"You'd better go back to your department and ask permission to come up later," she was crisply advised. "Mr. Barlow may not come in before half-past nine."

"I'll wait a little longer," Jerry said.

Silently she prayed that she might see Mr. Barlow before she must be at her counter. Her courage was leaving her rapidly. If he did not come soon she feared she would flee in terror.

She kept her eyes fixed on the door to the outside office where she sat impatiently waiting. Each time it opened she felt as if she were being slowly smothered.

At three minutes to nine she she rose to go. The door opened again. This time it was the manager.

"You'll be late," his secretary warned Jerry as he passed into the inner office.

"It doesn't matter," Jerry answered tensely. "Please tell him I want to see him about something very important. Right away please."

The secretary was touched by the appeal in her voice and manner.

"All right," she said. "But I doubt if he will see you now."

"He must, he must!" Jerry cried; "ask him."

The secretary gave her a closely scrutinizing look and followed Mr. Barlow into his private office.

"There's a girl out here who seems nearly distracted about something," she said gravely. "I think you'd better see her, Mr. Barlow. There's nothing on your appointment list that can't wait until nine-twenty."

Mr. Barlow lifted keen, understanding eyes to her face.

"Send her in, Miss Stahl," he said.

In less than a minute Jerry stood before him, twisting her fingers spasmodically about the old felt bag in her hands.

"What's your name?" Mr. Barlow inquired as he watched her from under bent, concentrated brows.

"Miss Ray—Jerry Ray," she answered swiftly.

"Sit down, Miss Ray," He motioned to a chair by his desk, Jerry took it, sitting bolt upright.

"Now, what do you want to see me about?" he went on, trying to make it easier for her with his kindly accents. He had seen women on the verge of panic before. . . especialy shoplifters. . . he wanted to avoid a scene of that kind.

Jerry thrust the felt bag toward him over his mahogany desk.

"It's in there," she said gaspingly; "a tunic. I took it. Oh, I didn't steal it, Mr. Barlow. I just wanted to wear it once—it wouldn't have been missed. . . .

Mr. Barlow leaned over his desk and took up the felt bag. Jerry caught her breath when he began to open it. He lifted out the tunic without a word and unfolded it.

"It. . . . I. . . . had an accident," Jerry said weakly. "It's ruined, I guess, but I'll pay for it cident. I guess, but I'll pay for it if you'll let me."

Mr. Barlow turned his attention to her.

"This is a very serious matter, Miss Ray," he said quietly. "I hope you realize that."

"Yes, I do," Jerry cried, "but I didn't dream that it would turn out like this. There's lots of used things brought back to the store. I was so very careful until. . . . until they threw me. . . . until I had the accident. . . .

Mr. Barlow reached out and put a soothing hand on her arm to quell her rising hysteria.

"Don't be frightened," he said "Just tell me the truth. You'd better begin at the beginning, I think." He was familiar enough with human nature to know that a girl with Jerry Ray's fine record had not taken the merchandise from the store without an urgent reason.

Jerry tried to tell him something of her need. But it soon became apparent to her that Mr. Barlow did not consider her explanation satisfatory. There wasn't much excuse she knew for virtually stealing the dress merely for the express purpose of wearing it to the party.

She groped for new words and to make him understand.

"You see. . . . I . . . . I couldn't let my friend down. . . . oh, Mr. Barlow, sometimes a girl just has to have a party dress! You don't know what it means to have everything in your life depending upon a dress and yet not have the money to pay for it. . . . ."she broke off, scanning his face in forlorn hope.

"But you spoke a while ago of paying for this tunic," Mr. Barlow reminded her. "How will you do that if you hadn't the money yesterday to pay for it?"

A great deal—far more than she guessed — depended upon Jerry's answer. Mr. Barlow knew that girls who attended parties at roadhouses often received expensive favors, sometimes with hundred-dollar bills tucked into them. If one of his girls. . . . .

"I haven't any money," Jerry said helplessly, "but I can live on half my wages, somehow, until the tunic is paid for."

Mr. Barlow's face showed relief.

"I'd lke to let you do that, Miss Ray," he said pityingly, "but the discipline we must maintain here forbids it. In fact, I should not like it to become known throughout the establishment that we are letting you off so easily."

Jerry fastened her eyes upon him in mute suspense.

"We can't keep you with us," he went on. "You can see the bad effect it would have upon any employe who might be tempted to do as you did. . . . ."

He looked away from her.

"In a store that employs thousands of girls we can't be too careful. . . . but I shall not insist that you reimburse us for our loss," he pressed a button.

"Miss Stahl will see that you get the money due you and at the proper time you will receive whatever you have earned in commissions."

Mr. Barlow did not look at her again.

Jerry rose and passed out the door.

Jerry Ray, jobless and penniless!

I WROTE A LETTER

For the want of something better,
I sat down and wrote a letter.
Having nothing much to do,
I just wrote a page or two
To a friend, and to a brother,
And a little news to Mother,
Having nothing, as I say,
Nothing much to do today.

Mother was so pleased, God bless her!
(There's her answer on the dresser.)
And it happened that my friend
Needed just the words I penned.
Even Brother wrote and thanked me.
("Out of gobs of gloom you yanked me.")
Why, I never thought a line
Meant so much to folks of mine.

As a rule I'm pretty busy—
There's so much it makes me dizzy—
But it seems, in all the list,
The most important thing I missed.
Really wouldn't it be better
Just to stop and write a letter
Than to wait, and then to say,
"Nothing else to do today"?

Your Health

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

ONE OF the most remarkable manifestations of modern medical science has been the discovery that human beings may be especially sensitive to certain substances in their diet or in their environment and react by development of severe symptoms, including eruption, high fever, asthmatic attacks, and not infrequently complete prostration.

By means of skin tests with extracts of the suspected substances it is possible to show the nature of the things to which the person may be sensitive.

Among the leading causes of such sensitization specialists have found women who react with these symptoms in the presence of dandruff from leopard skin or other furs; some people are sensitive to glue, to feathers, to various types of dust, to pollens, to strawberries, indeed to almost every type of plant or animal product.

Specific Case.

Scientific detective work is necessary to determine the causative factors in some cases. A baby girl six weeks of age had suffered from an unusual form of swelling. The baby had received nothing but its mother's milk and had gained weight steadily until it was 21 days old.

At that time its left leg was found to be swollen and the child was fretful. The swelling lasted five days and involved later the face and the right arm, as well as the right side of the patient.

For three weeks the swelling came and went in various portions of the body while the physician studied the case. It was decided to examine the mother's diet. The family lived in the mountains of West Virginia. The mother had not eaten any green vegetables since the infant's birth, and she had not had any beef steak, liver or red meats. She had subsisted principally on pork and bacon, supplemented rarely with chicken, and the main source of her diet had been cornbread and dried white navy beans.

Occasionally she had had potato, onion or canned corn. Skin tests were made on the infant with the mother's milk and with the milk of three other mothers. It was found that the infant reacted promptly with swelling following injection of an extract of its mother's milk, but did not react to the milk of the other mothers.

Tests were also made with extracts of food taken by the mother. The infant did not react to cow's milk, egg, beef, potato or cereals, but did react promptly to extracts of navy beans.

Mother on Diet.

The mother was put on a diet from which beans and corn were eliminated, and the infant was given a preparation which aids in the control of this condition of sensitization. Within 36 hours the swelling disappeared and new ones did not develop.

When, however, the preparation was discontinued, the swellings appeared again, so that this was kept up with gradually lengthening of intervals between doses until after five and one-half months, when the infant was able to get along entirely without the drug.

It was discovered later that the mother had occasionally included beans and corn in her diet, although asked not to do so by the physician, and that the swellings had invariably followed the taking of such food.

When the infant was two years of age it was again given as an experiment some white navy beans. Within four hours tremendous blisters appeared over the body as proof of the fact that it had a specific sensitivity to this substance.

Strangely enough string beans did not cause the symptoms in this child, which would indicate that there is some protein in the white navy bean that is not present in the string beans.

The case is an indication of the importance of considering each human being as an individual.

NAHMA NEWS

Nahma, Mich., Nov. 21 (Special)—A large crowd is expected to attend the movie show which will be given for the bentfit of Mercier Post, American Legian, at the Nahma clubhouse on Friday night, November 23. The main picture on the program will be "The Sky Raider," featuring Capt. Charles Nungesser, France's famous war ace, who lost his life in an attempted Atlantic ocean flight.

At the beginning of his flying experience Capt. Nungesser sat at the officers' mess table with six other flyers in his squadron. The next day one fell to earth in combat; then another was taken; then the third; the fourth; the fifth; the sixth. Then six more took their places—and they were taken, until seventy-four men had come and gone from that table—while Nungesser, alone remained alive. He was absent from it at times while he recovered from seventeen wounds, but he remained to become the greatest living ace on earth.

An explosive bullet went off in his teeth at twelve thousand feet, but he fought on and landed safely, somehow, with two more victories to his wonderful record.

He is officially cited for the destruction of forty-five German planes and further credited with sixty more—a total of one hundred and five.

The local Congregational church was filled to capacity Friday afternoon when Miss Namicheck, representing the State Department of Health, accompanied by School Commissioner Woolpert of Escanaba, gave a demonstration to the pupils of local schools on health rules for young people. Most of those present were pupils in the Garden schools. The gathering was greatly appreciated by all present.

A home talent play entitled "Castle in the Air" will be staged on Thanksgiving night, November 29, in the Rex Theatre, Garden, under the direction of Rev. Fr. V. C. Savageau, for the benefit of St. John's Catholic church. The characters are as follows:

Margie Estabrook, the air castle girl ..... Lorna Dotsch

Mrs. Estabrook, Margie's mother ..... Bella Deloria

Mrs. Jenkins, a neighbor ..... Stella Gauthier

Jane Jenkins, her daughter..... Erma Boudreau

Bill Bronson, Jane's suitor..... Andy Tatrow

Lenny Taft, the grocer's boy..... Clayton Prokop

Daddy Alden, village philosopher ..... Virgil Winters

Jim Ruggles, young attorney..... Donald Farley

Mimi Carlyle, a spoiled darling... Rita Boudreau

Edward Carlyle, Mimi's father.. Lawrence Baker

Delia, colored servant to the Estabrooks ..... Guess who?

The action of the play takes place in a little village near New York City, where we find Margie Estabrook left penniless by the business failures of her father, who has committed suicide, and with a blind mother to support. Still, Margie is a shining example of a girl strong in adversity. When her father's former partner, who was chiefly responsible for his financial ruin, comes seeking her in marriage, she revolts against the idea of a union with so unprincipled a man, yet in the end yields for her mother's sake, until her true mate comes to the rescue.

Daddy Alden, a gentle old philosopher, also takes a hand in the game and checkmates the unwelcome suitor. The selfish flapper developes a generous impulse and the curtain falls to the tune of wedding bells.

Excellent comedy types are: The talkative neighborhood gossip and her flirtatious young daughter Jane, a gawky chauffeur and a jealous delivery boy, Jane's suitors, also Margie's devoted Old Black Mammy.

Altogether, the entertainment promises to be one of the most enjoyable events ever undertaken in this part of the country, and no one will regret the price of admission which will be 25 cents for children and 50 cents for adults.

Attention of local readers is asked to the Red Cross drive which is being conducted in Fairbank's and Garden township, in conjunction with other points in the county and state. It is not expected that a complete house to house canvass can be made throughout the peninsula but it is hoped that interested persons will not let this fact prevent them from rendering any possible assistance in this most worthy cause. For the convenience of those wishing to give, Mr. Gauthier of the local bank has kindly consented to cooperate and subscriptions may be left there. Already a number of the familiar Red Cross signs are to be seen, on automobiles, and in the windows of business houses and residences, indicating memberships in the organization and it is believed that these will be greatly increased between now and Thanksgiving when the local drive closes. Most of us here have much for which we should be grateful and it should be a source of much pleasure to give to the work of this society. Mrs. Kathrine Hughes and Rev. H. Heafield have been appointed to take care of the work in the Fairbanks and Garden townships.

Monday was "skip day" for Miss Swanson of the local schools. The school ma'am visited a number of other schools in the township.

FLOODS FORCE KANSANS TO MOVE

More than 100 families at Ottawa, Kans., were driven from their homes when the Marias des Cygne river overflowed. Several lives were lost in Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri by high water. This scene shows an Ottawa family moving as water creeps up their street.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT.

Vera Gordon was the only stage mother playing on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot on "Mother's Day."

So when the annual Sunday came around, John Gilbert, Joan Crawford and the other members of the company of "Four Walls" made the day for her a very real occasion. The picture is now on view at the Delft.

Gilbert was the first to appear with a huge armful of flowers. Then a few minutes later Joan Crawford and Carmel Myers appeared with similar bouquets. Director William Nigh, not to be daunted, sent off the set for a beautiful corsage.

In fact, the contagion spread so rapidly that Miss Gordon had to send out an appeal to prevent the players on adjoining sets from making contributions. Miss Gordon had two grown children at home who were sure to remember her and she thought that was enough.

Official pictures of the Dempsey-Tunney fight also are on view.

AT THE STRAND.

George Lewis, star of the "Collegians" series, and now playing a featured role in "Jazz Mad," Universal picture now at the Strand, was born in Mexico City, Mexico, where his parents were connected with the United States diplomatic staff. Jean Hersholt stars in "Jazz Mad" and Marian Nixon plays a featured part. The screen story was written by Svend Gade. The Hollywood Bowl Orchestra and the conductor, Alfred Hertz appear prominently in the picture. Included in the company are Roscoe Karns, Torben Meyer, Andrew Arbuckle, Charles Clary, Clarissa Selwynne, and Patricia Caron. F. Harmon Weight directed.

Motorists "Tag" Themselves.

Pittsburgh (AP)—A ruse to "fool" traffic police has been worked here successfully for some time, but the police are on to it now. Motorists who had received "tags" for parking violations saved them and stuck them on their cars when they parked to make the patrolmen think they already had been tagged.

Hints For The Farm

Winter wheat makes excellent pasture and can be used for this purpose when other pastures fail. Livestock can be left in the wheat field all winter if the ground remains dry and there is plenty of plant growth. If care is taken to prevent excessive pasturing and grazing when the soil is wet, injury to the wheat crop is not likely to occur.

It may be well to hold a post-mortem on whatever fowls are found dead at this time of year, to see if roundworms or secum worms are present in the flocks. If they are, add to the dry mash 2 per cent by weight of finely powdered tobacco dust, containing at least 1.5 per cent nicotine, to control the worms. This will lessen the danger to young chicks and poults next spring.

An economical way to utilize velvet-bean pasture in the south is to allow hogs to follow the cattle. Hogs will eat practically all the beans broken from the plants and wasted by the cattle. A good stand of velvet beans should produce about 200 pounds of beef and 100 pounds of pork per acre.

Kitchen scraps should be fed to domestic animals, if they are kept. If not, the scraps should be "fed" to the garden because of their fertilizer value.

Cheese may be made at any time of the year, and on farms where there is a surplus of milk during certain seasons cheese-making offers an exceptionally advantageous means of conserving, for later use, milk which otherwise might be wasted. The farm home could well afford to use more cheese. It provides muscle and body-building material in abundance.

A half-acre garden, if properly cared for, will produce sufficient vegetables for the average family's use during the summer and for storing, canning and drying for winter use. It will produce a far greater return per acre than can be realized from an equal area devoted to general farm crops.

If neither silage nor a root crop is available as a succulent feed for the dairy cow, dried beet pulp soaked with about three times its weight of water makes a satisfactory substitute.

The selection of baits for trapping rats is as important as in poisoning. Fresh baits, changed daily, should be used. A variety of baits, such as meat, vegetables and cereals on successive traps usually will give better results than only one kind of bait. Almost any food suitable for human consumption is recommended.

Since the largest part of the returns from farm flocks is derived from the sale of lambs, it is important that they be in the best marketable condition. Ram lambs and undocked lambs are discriminated against on the market because they are less well developed and lack a uniform and attractive appearance.

To be successful in beekeeping a careful study of bee activities is essential and the work cannot be done successfully by rule of thumb. Because of the study necessary to success, it usually is advised that the beekeeper start on a small scale and increase his colonies as his experience grows. The alert beekeeper may increase the number of his colonies rapidly and it is a mistake to spend years in preparation for commercial beekeeping.

In the southern states weevils can be discouraged from attacking stored corn by keeping, as far as possible, only those ears which have long, tight shucks. Unprotected ears should be fed or sold as quickly as possible. If necessary to store corn without good shuck protection, it is better if it is shucked, shelled, cleaned and put in closely woven cloth bags.

To obtain even utilization of the range for cattle and to prevent overgrazing in parts near the water, watering places in level country should be not more than five miles apart.

Poultry mites do not like carbolineum. If these pests are in the poultry house paint carbolineum on the roosts, nests and the places where the roosts come in contact with the dropping boards and rear of the house. One application is usually enough for a whole year.

Ewes to be bred at this time of year should be given plenty of abundant pastures, such as timothy, bluegrass or rape. Pumpkins strewn over the field are excellent as a feed.

Every acre of tilled land not in legumes during the winter should be in a small grain cover crop, except where fall plowing is advisable. For emergency cover crops and pasture there are no more useful plants than the small grains, which take up the available nitrate that otherwise would be lost, prevent washing and make excellent grazing in favorable weather.

Young heifers wintered at the U. S. Range Livestock Experiment Station, Miles City, Mont., on blue-joint hay for 84 days showed a gain of 65 pounds with a daily ration of 20 pounds of hay. Another lot required 23 pounds of alfalfa hay for the same period to make a gain of 51 pounds.

As a soil improver a winter legume generally is more valuable than a summer legume. It occupies the ground at a time when the money crop is not grown and is turned under at a time to permit the most favorable utilization of nitrogen by the money crop. Vetches, Australian winter peas, bur clover and crimson clover are good crops for this purpose in the south.

Carbon disulphide is a good insecticide for fumigating stored grains, cowpeas, beans and peas. Amounts up to 20 pounds of the liquid material per 1,000 cubic feet are necessary to kill grain insects in ordinary rooms where the walls and floors are not especially tight. Since the vapor of carbon disulphide is highly inflamable, care should be taken to keep fire in any form from the room that is being fumigated.

In the 12 months ending June 30, total tonnage of the world's sailing ships of 100 tons or over, excluding those carrying auxiliary power, decreased 186,825 tons to 1,795,246, according to a report just issued.

MR. CHARLES J. ANDERSON

ESCANABA MAN ADDS HIS PRAISE FOR NEW REMEDY

Indigestion and Other Stomach Disorders Show Rapid Improvement by Taking Dreco, The New Root and Herb Medicine

The great herbal remedy Dreco which was recently introduced here through the Dreco Expert at the Drug Dept. of The Fair Store is growing daily in popularity because of its certain action on the vital organs. Its powers are great to relieve constipation, dizziness, headaches, gas in the stomach, backache and other symptoms. Many people testify to the results obtained.

Mr. Charles J. Anderson of 303 North 14th St., Escanaba, says: "I've been troubled in a peculiar way and nothing seemed to correct it. After meals I'd have an excess of saliva in my mouth which was really disagreeable. I believe it was caused by a form of indigestion as I also felt uncomfortable in my stomach.

"I got a bottle of the new medicine Dreco and it has surely helped, in fact, I am now on my second bottle and improving every day. I think it a grand medicine."

Dreco is the pure liquid extract of twelve roots, herbs, barks and leaves, Nature's own remedies. After taking Dreco it is noticed that the stomach is soothed and the gassy condition eliminated; the bowels become active, relieving constipation, headaches, dizzy spells and that dull, tired out feeling; nerves are quieted which induces sound sleep and the whole system takes on renewed energy, vigor and vitality.

The Dreco Man is now at the Drug Dept. of The Fair Store, where he is daily explaining the merits of Dreco to numerous local people and presenting everyone who is interested with a valuable health booklet free.

Novelty Vaudeville Offerings Booked

Novelty and originality will be the outstanding characteristics of the Delft theatre's vaudeville bill Friday and Saturday. Freddie Craig, Jr., is said to have the most unusual vaudeville act in the country. He is billed as a "mental marvel" and he has given exhibitions of his unusual mental faculties before advanced classes in psychology in many of the larger universities. "Doing eight things at one time" is said to be one of his startling "stunts."

Tock & Toy, a real Chinese boy and girl, will furnish the singing-dancing portion of the program. Both are said to be vocalists and dancers of unusual ability.

"The Romany Revue," a musical act known as "A Woodland Dream" in which gypsy settings, costuming, songs and instrumental music predominate, will complete the bill.

Grouse Rushed by Plane

Within a few hours after being shot on the Scottish moors, grouse are being served and eaten in London this season. The birds were rushed by airplane to landing fields and from there whisked away in delivery wagons to the larger hotels. At Manchester, birds, which were shot in the morning, were served in restaurants at noon. In London dinners at the hotels were eating the grouse by 1 p. m.

FOLKS SLOW IN BRINGING TOYS

There has been no response as yet to the offer made by Manistique firemen to repair discarded toys for Christmas gifts to needy children. The firemen are anxious to get these in as soon as possible, so that there may be ample time to renovate them in time for holiday distribution. If there are any unused, outgrown or broken toys in Manistique homes, local residents are invited to bring them to the fire hall within the next week or two. Some little article that may seem trivial and valueless to the owner may be the means of bringing more holiday cheer to some worthy youngster.

The firemen are prepared to administer a touch of paint, a screw or a bolt here and there, and make other necessary repairs to put the playthings in good usable condition.

"SPORTING AGE" AT GERO

The Busch Gardens at Pasadena, California, furnish the picturesque backgrounds for the idyllic love sequences in Columbia's "The Sporting Age," starring Belle Bennett which comes to the Gero Theatre today.

These gardens are part of one of the most beautiful estates on the West Coast. It is the home site of one of California's pioneers. The owner, a globe trotter, and horticulturist, has gathered many rare specimens of shrub, tree and flower which have been transplanted to the Busch Gardens. They are incorporated in an exquisite landscape arrangement in the vast Pasadena grounds.

Against this ideal photographic background Belle Bennett, as the middle aged woman who feels that she is losing her grip on youth, struggles to hold her girlish lure and win the heart of Carroll Nye as the young secretary. Here some of the strongest emotional scenes of the production are enacted.

PAPE'S COLD COMPOUND

NOTED PLAYER WITH COTTERS

Edith McGregor Woods, mother of Harry Woods, the composer of "The Red, Red Robin" and "Side by Side" which was made famous by the Duncan Sisters, is a feature member of the cast of "The Cotter's Saturday Night," noted musical play which will be given here Tuesday night under the auspices of the Manistique Women's Club.

The Scottish Musicale Comedy Company of Boston will present the play at Manistique with a cast of outstanding artists. This cast had the honor of playing in Washington, D. C., before President Coolidge and were received at the White House by President Coolidge.

In the quaint setting of eighteenth-century Scotland, romance, pathos and comedy are woven through the plot which is interesting from start to finish. The play is filled with such old Scottish melodies as "John "Anderson, My Jo," "Loch Lomond" and "Auld Lang Syne."

This is the opening number of the Manistique lyceum course.

South African Gem Area Is Prosperous

Capetown, South Africa—The government estimates that the Namaqualand diamond field at Alexander Bay will yield approximately $80,000,000 in diamonds. Thus far stones worth between $23,000,000 and $27,000,000 have been obtained.

To allay fears of diamond owners and dealers, it is authoritatively stated that the government will not put stones upon the market in quantities likely to disturb prices.

Recent reports of leakages in the state alluvial diamond diggings in Namaqualand and of the disposal of smuggled stones to buyers in the Transvaal and Kimberly, brought forth an official statement emphasizing the impossibility of smuggling from the government diamond fields under the present strict system of surveillance.

It was reported that the diamond detective department of the government had confiscated parcels of stones valued at between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000.

Austrians Complain of National Poverty

Vienna—Austrian Minister of Finance Kienboeck called Austria the "beggar of Europe" in a recent statement of the country's financial plight.

The minister told the Austrian chamber of deputies that 98% of the Austrian people received incomes of from $250 to $400 yearly. He said that the majority were small wage earners who could not afford ordinary comforts.

The remaining 2%, he said, lived on incomes ranging from $2,000 to $3,000. He said there were no millionaires in the country and compared this picture with the United States.

THEATRES

AT THE RIALTO

The famous sirens of history never vamped more successfully and with as little effort as a cunning baby star in Gladstone now playing at Rialto this week. Had they seen Baby Dorothy Johnson smile and seen everyone she meets succumb to her charms, they would have grasped firmly their laurels lest they be snatched away.

Baby Dorothy is the heathly, bouncing young lady lady of seven years who sings and plays the saxophone. And she is a star not only to the cash customers in front of the stage but to the technical crew and the artists on the bill.

Playing Since Three

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Johnson, Baby Dorothy has been playing since she was three years old. Father warbled tunes on the sax about the house and the baby daughter manifested an interest in the proceedings. The result was the parents began teaching her to play and for some three years she has been appearing in public.

Dorothy is one of those children who on the stage possesses all the theatrics of an adult, but the moment her makeup and costume is off she is a normal child. In fact so normal that she still finds dolls interesting and thinks there is more fun to be had selling tickets than anything else she can think of.

Laid out at an altitude of 6,000 feet, the new golf course in the Pyrenees is believed to be one of the highest, if not the loftiest, links in the world. To play, one should not only be an expert golfer, but a mountaineer as well. A sliced ball may cause a trip down a yawning chasm or into a dense copse in which wild cats frequently lurk.

Total stock sales today 6,047,300 shares.

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Writer

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)—This mightiest of all stock markets crumpled up with a severe attack of growing pains today which left most active issues down 1 to 12 points. The market was flooded with selling orders, as traders hastened to take their profits while the taking was good, but on the whole offerings were absorbed with remarkable ease, as plenty of buyers appeared at the lower levels.

Total sales were carried over the 6,000,000-share market for the third time in history, aggregating 6,047,300 shares. Naturally the ticker was more than an hour in arrears during most of the session, which made traders a little panicky as to what the bottom prices may have been on the floor.

The days news was largely constructive, so the reaction could be attributed only to the market's own overnight condition. The corrective movement was about what had been looked for.

Await Loan Figures

The credit situation seemed to be about the only cloud on the horizon, although call money held at 6½ per cent all day. Greater stringency is looked for next week, however, with the beginning of holiday requirements about Wednesday.

The hope of credit improvement through further gold imports waned as Sterling held above the gold import point, and the possibility of loss of gold to Canada appeared as the premium on the Canadian dollar passed the export gold point. The federal reserve brokers' loan figures to be announced tomorrow were expectantly awaited to see whether the record speculation would affect the total as slightly as it did last week. There was some apprehension in banking circles that foreign central banks may raise their rediscount rates, which would undoubtedly cause the withdrawal of large foreign loans on stock collateral.

The iron and steel trade reviews, while reporting further seasonal slackening in production, were optimistic as to first quarter propects. Another copper company to give tangible results of the upturn in the industry was Calumet and Arizona, which declared an extra dividend of $1. The value of stock exchange seats crossed the half million mark with a sale arranged at $525,000, a jump of $30,000 from the previous record sale.

Prices Wobble Down

The Associated Press average price of 20 industrials was carried down nearly 4 points from yesterday's high to 248.69, and rails, down 2.13 points to 153.17.

Price trends wobbled up and down in confusing fashion during most of the session, until the last hour, when practically the entire list turned downward, leaving about half a dozen substantial gains at the close. Radio again provided the fireworks, shooting 21 points to a new peak at 379, falling back to 345, then rallying of 359 and closing with a point gain.

Of the other recent high fliers, Case Threshing lost nearly 20 of its spectacular gain of nearly 46 points yesterday, and International Harvester lost 13 of its gain of about 43 points the day before. DuPont, however, lost only 3 points of yesterday's 52-point advance. Montgomery Ward dropped 12 points.

The coppers, strongest group of recent sessions, generally receded, American Smelting, Anaconda and Chile, losing 4 and 5 points each. Motors, which have been heavy of late, were further depressed. General Motors, old, lost more than 3 points, and the new stock sold at one time at 84 3-4, a new low. Packard and Chrysler lost about 2 and 3 points. Mack Truck, however, was strong, making an extreme gain of nearly 3 points.

Few Strong Points

Losses of 4 to 10 points were suffered by such issues as American Bank Note, Adams Express, Curtiss Aero, Republic Iron and Steel, Sears Roebuck, Canadian Pacific, New York Central, Pullman, National Bellas Hess, Union Pacific, Western Union and Woolworth.

U. S. Steel sold more than 3 points lower, but regained about half of its loss.

The few strong points of the session included National Biscuit, which sold up about 9 points to a new peak at 185¼, and retained about half of its gain. Union Carbide advanced about 9 points, but lost most of the ground gailned. Wright Aero advanced 14 points, and closed with a net gain of 8. Keith-Albee Orpheum preferred jumped 6 points to a new peak, then fell back 8.

Will Appeal Kell Assault Case to the Circuit Court

Menominee — Declaring he would start proceedings seeking to oust John E. Jones, Menominee, from the office of justice and denouncing Alex Bouty, clerk of Spalding township, as a "tyrant." State Senator H. J. Rushton of Escanaba, defense attorney, Monday appealed to circuit court the assault and battery case against his client, Walter Kell, farm implement dealer of Wilson, after Justice Jones had fined Kell $100 and assessed costs of $30 against him. Bouty had been the complainant in the assault and battery action.

The assault case, heard in the council rooms at the city hall, resulted in numerous clashes between Atty. Rushton, Justice Jones and Prosecutor K. O. Doyle. The state senator became considerably heated in his denunciations of the presiding justice, declaring he was a "disgrace to any court." He declared the prosecutor controlled the court, telling Justice Jones "what to do." He declared it was time that "something is done" to relieve the people of Menominee county "of the tyranny of a man the type of Alex Bouty."

Jury Selection Unfair—Claimed.

The first clash occurred when Atty. Rushton appeared in court with Police Chief John Riedy requesting that the police chief draw the jury for the Kell trial. The chief was making out a list of 18 veniremen when the prosecutor came into court with Sheriff Charles Bauer and asserted that the sheriff was to draw the jury. There was recourse to the law books to determine just who was to draw the jury and it was ascertained that the court, itself, was empowered to order whom should select the jury. The court found Kell guilty and assessed the maximum fine.

Before fine was imposed, the prosecutor declared "we have had $10 and $15 assault and battery cases before, but this case is not in that class." He declared that whether the court imposed a fine or a jail sentence, the maximum should be imposed.

The prosecutor declared he wanted to impress on the people of Menominee county the seriousness of committing assault and battery.

Bouty "Tyrant" Claims.

The defense attorney retorted that he "wanted to impress on the people of Menominee county that it was time something is done to relieve them of the tyranny of a man the type of Alex Bouty."

The defense attorney said there was no use in offering a defense in the case as he "couldn't get a fair trial before Jones." He said later he would file a petition with Governor Green to have Justice Jones removed from office.

Offer Defense Testimony.

The testimony offered in the trial of Kell yesterday was to the effect that Alex Bouty was seated in a chair in the general store of Alvin Perry at Powers talking to a couple other men when Kell came in, bought a cigar, and walking over to Bouty said something to him and slapped him, inviting him outside to fight. Bouty drew a revolver and threatened to shoot. Bystanders interfered. It was brought out that Bouty had a permit from county authorities to carry a revolver.

What brought on the trouble between Kell and Bouty was not disclosed in the testimony. It is understood, however, that Kell accused Bouty of interfering with his (Kell's) marital affairs.

Leathem Smith Co. Lands Contract

Sturgeon Bay—The Leathem D. Smith Dock company has closed a contract with the U. S. Gypsum company totaling approximately $40,000 for the supplying of machinery and plans covering the equipment of a 15,000 ton storage bin loading dock with the L. D. Smith patented self-unloader equipment. This equipment will be used in loading the gypsum rock into ships at the rate of 1200 tons per hour.

The equipment consists of two-eight yard scrapers and two-48-inch schuttle conveyors and will be installed according to the plans and under the supervision of the men from the local yards. This is the first use of the unloading apparatus in a shore installation and it is stated that the field in this line of work is most promising. Thirteen ships have been equipped with the unloading device up to the present time.

A number of new ship installations are being considered, some in Sturgeon Bay, one on the Atlantic coast and one to be built in England. Definite decisions on these jobs will probably be reached in the next 30 days.

Tree 500 Years Old Burned.

A yew tree, 500 years old, a landmark for generations and mentioned in history when Tintern Abbey, in the Wye Valley of Ireland, was in its glory, was recently burned. The tree was in the chapel graveyard near Tintern. An effort to rid it of bees ignited the trunk, which burned for three days.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Nov. 21—Big trading and prices that overtopped the season's record made corn today the grain market leader. Aggressive buying of corn future deliveries followed word that Germany has cut corn export duties in half, and that this cut implies increased demand for United States corn during the next six months.

The corn market finished strong at the day's top level, 1 1-8 to 1 3-4c a bushel net higher, with wheat ¼ to 7-8c up, oats showing 3-4 to 7-8c advance, and provisions ranging from 10c decline to a rise of 5c.

Corn quickly began to ascend, almost as soon as trading commenced. Except for brief transient setbacks on account of intervals of profit taking, the market continued thereafter at a brisk rate upgrade.

Wheat and oats borrowed strength from the corn market. There were also advices from Rosario, Argentina, referring to unwelcome rains, and this was regarded as of significance in view of the fact that the Argentine wheat harvest is under way in sections north of Rosario. Winnipeg messages said lake shipments of 50,000,000 busheis of Canadian wheat are to be made between now and the close of navigation.

Pheasants of Turkey who lost much during the summer droughts may need government aid before the winter is over.

M. S. C. CAGERS START DEC. 7

State College Quintet to Play Wolverines in Opener

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 21—In one more week Coach Ben Van Alstyne's Spartan basketball team will step to the front to demand the attention that has been lavished during the fall on football, and to prepare for the approaching court season the Michigan State cagers have been working out daily since October 15. The schedule officially opens on December 7 at Ann Arbor against the University of Michigan.

Four veterans from last year's powerful squad compose the nucleus around whom Van Alstyne has been building his team so far this fall. With the end of the football season three more will report to augment the list. Those now in uniform are Den Herder of Grand Haven, Don Grove of Sturgis, Van Zylen of Grand Haven and Totten of Detroit. When football suits are put away, Schau of Scherville, Ind., Russo of Jackson, and Dickeson of Highland Park will report after a short rest.

Capt. Carl Felt of Muskegon is not in school for the fall term but may return this winter, while Colvin, a regular last year, has graduated, and McGillicuddy, dependable guard, has enrolled in the University of Michigan medical course.

Coach Van Alstyne is looking to a handful of sophomores to bolster up his attack this fall. Among these are Haga of Muskegon, Bayerle and Pearcy of Frankport, Ind., in addition to Prendergast of Owosso who will not complete the full year of residence required for eligibility until the winter term. Three first-year stars from the football squad may also be given a chance to show their ability on the court. They are Roger Grove of Sturgis, Nordberg of St. Joseph, and Smead of Sturgis.

Present indications are that State will take the floor against Michigan with a lineup something like this: Van Zyleen and Den Herder, gorwards; Totton, center; Haga and Schau, guards. Russo and Bayerle, guards, and Don and Roger Grove, forwards, will be alternates.

One reason for the unusual interest in basketball this year at East Lansing is a schedule crammed full of stellar games. Van Alstyne is hoping to build up the prestige of his team against such fives as Colgate, Syracuse, Penn State, Cornell, Michigan, Notre Dame, Ohio Wesleyan, Detroit and Marquette.

The complete schedule is as follows:

Dec. 7—Michigan at Ann Arbor.
Dec. 14—Hillsdale at East Lansing.
Jan. 2—Penn State at East Lansing.
Jan. 3—Cornell University at East Lansing.
Jan. 7—Ohio Wesleyan at East Lansing.
Jan. 11—Marquette at East Lansing.
Jan. 18—Detroit at Detroit.
Jan. 23—Notre Dame at Notre Dame.
Jan. 26—Kalamazoo at East Lansing.
Feb. 1—Colgate at Colgate.
Feb. 2—Syracuse at Syracuse.
Feb. 15—Detroit at Detroit.
Feb. 8—Hope at East Lansing.
March 1—Lake Forest at East Lansing.
March 4—Marquette at Marquette.

Vikings Meet This Evening

All boys planning on trying out for the Viking basketball squad are asked to meet at the Swedish Lutheran church this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The members of the team will hold a short business session and make plans for the coming season.

Over Confidence Proves Disastrous to Rangers, New York Hockey Team

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)—The championship complex, better known in other sports as "overconfidence," is cropping up for the first time to bother the ancients who putter with the records of the National Professional Hockey League.

This curse has struck the New York Rangers, they say, and is the chief explanation for the showing of the world champions, now just an ordinary hockey team after but one victory, one tie and one defeat in the first three games of the youthful season. The rest of the reasons are the other clubs, far stronger on the ice than they appeared on paper after the wholesale rebuilding and trading of the off season.

Along with the realignment of favorites in the current race for the Stanley cup, because of the Rangers' mediocre showing, has come amazement at the increased interest in hockey all over the league circuit. With no games scheduled on Tex Rickard's pond in Madison Square Garden where 20,000 can be accommodated, five opening games drew a total attendance of 50,000.

Two games played in Detroit have jammed the rink there to its 14,000 capacity; Pittsburgh with its arena that normally seats 3,300 managed to pack 7,000 into the hall last Thursday night, breaking the local record and causing broad smiles to wreath the faces of promoters as walls bulged aii around the circuit.

Detroit Shows Strength.

While the Rangers and the Boston Bruins, co-favorites in the American group of the league at the start of the season, are sharing the lead in that group, neither seems quite as dangerous as was expected. The Rangers apparently have yet to get down to the hard work of winning the games necessary while the Bruins are experimenting with an unwieldly squad of 15 players, many of them youngsters who have yet to find the secret of combination play.

The surprise of the league is the strength of two outsiders, the Cougars of Detroit and Benny Leonard's Pittsburgh Pirates. The Cougars apparently have a find in "Dolly" Dolson, goalie last year with the champion Stratford Nationals in the Canadian pro-league. A crack forward line—"nasty" is their rivals' term of approbation—consists of Herb Lewis, Georgie Hay and Larry Auril, and has shot enough goals to turn in a victory over Pittsburgh while losing to the Rangers.

The Pirates, with one win and two bitter defeats, seem to have a great deal of power despite the loss of Roy Worters, ace of the league goalies, who is a holdout, and the late signing of Milks, Darragh and Cotton. The rebuilding of the Chicago Blackhawks on a basis of youthful forwards so far has met with little success. The Hawks have lost three games.

Gamblers Suffer Losses.

The international group has run more in accordance with pre-season predictions. The Canadiens and Maroons, of Montreal, the natural leaders are tied with the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Ottawa Senators for the lead on returns from three games. Ottawa has tied two and won one while the others have two victories and a loss apiece. The New York Americans have yet to win or lose and have two ties.

Reversal of form, while interesting to hockey fans, has been disastrous to gamblers who wager almost unbelievable amounts on the New York Rangers in every game.

So the debit is estimated at $50,000, due to the Rangers' failure to beat the Maroons and the tie with the Americans. When the hockey season is in full blast, estimated wagers made on local games reach as high as $100,000 a week.

Illness Cuts Two More From State College Eleven

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 21—(AP)—An enemy far more destructive than any that invaded the camp of his warriors this season today took its toll of Coach Harry Kipke's Michigan State varsity material.

Two more players moved over to the hospital today with bad colds, bringing the sick list to five. The epidemic has caught Ferrari, Grove, Christensen and now Kurrle and Breen within its weakening grasps. Kipke was more concerned today over the physical condition of his team than at any other time this season.

Old Man Winter contributed his bit to the dismal outlook when a blinding snowstorm fell all day. Kipke sent his men through a stiff scrimmage in the field house with a freshman squad introducing North Carolina State plays and formations. A long signal drill followed on the field, with a punting practice for Crall and other backs who may be called on to assume Grove's job if he is unable to play Saturday.

College officials plan to broadcast the game next Saturday over radio station WKAR for the first time this year.

Cave With "Ball Room" Is Now In State Park

Sullivan, Mo. (AP)—A cave half a mile underground in which a Missouri governor held his inaugural ball, and several other caverns where fugitives of the civil war hid themselves, are in the Ozark mountain cave region which Missouri has set aside as a state park.

The caves, a dozen or more, sparkle with Onyx, limestone and marble formations, while giant stalagmites and stalactites add to the brilliance and eerieness of the underground recesses.

In Fischer's cave is an immense apartment called the Ball Room. Here Governor Fletcher in 1868 held his inaugural ball. From the mouth of a tunnel the governor's guests were conveyed a mile through a winding passageway in a small car drawn by a mule.

Before the civil war escaping slaves sought safety and freedom in the caves and their torturous corridors. Wealthy planters fled to the caverns when union forces swept this region. Their places were taken by abolitionists when the tides of war were reversed. Both groups carried much of their personal property and money with them. It is told in the hills that some of the fortunes of these refugees still lie within the Ozarks.

Snowstorm Keeps Michigan Eleven in Field House

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 21—(AP)—Kept indoors by the effects of a roaring snowstorm, Michigan put in its second day's work of the week in the Yost field house, the plans being materially changed because of the weather. Apparently the team now will meet Iowa with nothing more strenuous for the final week than touch scrimmage. Tonight's work was the double bill that has been in force all week, on varsity team opposing the freshman in defense while the other faced another first line in offense.

At the proper hour the two teams switched tactics and opponents. Michigan's coaches are getting in shape the line that would have been used since mid season, except for the injury that made it necessary to have a substitute ready for Bovard. Cragin, who played center in the Illinois game, is certain to start against Iowa and the Michigan line for that battle will be made up of Bovard, Pommerening, Poe, Steinke and Cragin. The exact manner in this battle front will be employed is not certain.

Michigan virtually finished its work for the Iowa game today, the Thursday and Friday sessions being devoted to conditioning stunts only.

Roman Cemetery 1800 Years Old Discovered

Szegedin, Hungary—A Roman cemetery, 1,800 years old, has been discovered at Szoereg, near here, at a spot where in the past an important Roman colony was situated. The discovery is the result of eight years of uninterrupted excavations by Hungarian archeologists, in the expense of which the ministry of education shared.

Eighty-two tombs containing the remains of Romans of the aristocratic class were discovered and inside were found flasks of balm, bronze mirrors, strings of pearls, other valuable jewels and medical instruments. Massive Sarcophagi of white marble and gold were removed from their 2,000-year-old resting place and transferred to the Szegedin museum.

Oldest Clock Rings Out Snappy Curfew

Rouen, France—The oldest clock in France received the shock of its 800 years existence when electric power was installed and the citizens of this ancient city were no less shocked when they heard a snappy three-minute curfew instead of the customary 15-minute tolling.

Built in 1174 during one of Rouen's most famous sieges, the clock in the old belfry had been repaired under instructions of William the Conqueror, who decreed that every night a man should ascend the 200 or more steps, and personally slam the sledge hammer curfew on the large bell.

Other dynasties came, the Revolution brought down many belfries, Napoleon ruled, then the Republic and still William the Conqueror's edict prevailed and night after night the man went up those steps.

Recently the city council decided to repeal the decree of the Conqueror and electricians were called in, wired the belfry and now the bell pounder is out of a job.

Pommerening To Play Last Game Against Iowa

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 21—(AP)—Because he played five minutes in the Oklahoma A. & M. game in his sophomore year, Otto Pommerening, star tackle of the University of Michigan football team, must close his college football career when the Wolverines meet the University of Iowa in the final game of the season here Saturday.

In 1926 Pommerening was a member of the Wolverine squad, but he played for only five minutes in the opening game. It was long enough, however, to make him ineligible for another year of competition. Three other regulars, Capt. George Rich, George Squier and Cragin, and four substitutes, also will bring their football careers to a close with Saturday's game.

French Army Costs $280,000,000 Yearly

Paris—Seven billion francs, $280,000,000 dollars, is the amount which France will spend in the maintenance and upkeep of its army during 1929.

This does not include the $60,000,000 appropriated for aviation, which now boasts of a separate ministry.

STATE TO PLAY FINAL CONTEST

Coach Kipke's Spartans to Meet North Carolina Eleven

East Lansing, Nov. 21—Determined to prove that Michigan State's ability to hold the University of Michigan to a 3-0 score last Saturday was no fluke, Coach Harry Kipke's Spartans will enter the inersectional tilt with North Carolina State college here Saturday afternoon thirsting for a victory as a fitting end to the season.

Discounting the fact that Michigan may not have been at top form against the Spartans, or that State was playing over its head, the one feature of Saturday's game that stands out in the minds of Green and White followers was that Kipke's team had hit its stride. State at all times against Michigan looked like a football team. True enough the offense faltered with touchdowns within grasp, but that is pardonable against such a great defensive team as Michigan, and it must be pointed out that Michigan's attack likewise folded up when near the Green and White goal line.

With his aerial attack at last beginning to function as he would wish it, Coach Kipke has been spending this week in putting the final touches on the Spartan team in preparation for the southerners.

Few changes are contemplated in the Spartan lineup for Saturday's game. The State forward wall that stood up so well against Michigan will probably be thrown against the Dixie team intact. This would put Capt. Hornbeck and Anderson at the ends, Ferrari and Christenson at the tackles, Moeller and Hitchings at the guards, and Smead at center. Two substitutions were made in the contest with the Wolverines, and these scarcely changed State's defensive power. Crabill was sent in at center, and Dill replaced Moeller at guard.

The slim Sturgis sophomore who has been called Kipke's "ghost" is expected Saturday to continue against North Carolina State the same superb brand of kicking he displayed against the Universities of Detroit and Michigan. It was Roger Grove and his kicking that did much to keep State out of danger in the Michigan game, and to push the Wolverines deep into their own territory. He averaged close to 40 yards throughout the game, and on one occasion he hoisted the pigskin down the field to a spot 85 yards distant from where he stood, aided, it is true, by a good bounce.

Although Michigan's powerful tackles and ends stopped Nordberg, State's elusive quarterback on numerous occasions, there is every indication that he will find the going less rough this Saturday, despite the power of State's intersectional opponents. With Danziger continuing his slashing bucks into the line, and Nordberg in form for end runs, and with the Spartan aerial attack functioning as well as it did against Michigan, it is certain that Kipke's team will be able to make things interesting offensively for the invaders.

State will be out to make up for last year's 19 to 0 defeat at the hands of the North Carolina team in Saturday's game, and with favorable weather it is expected that a large crowd of local and central Michigan fans will witness the contest. The crack State military band will parade as usual.

Great Britain May Change Election Date

London—There is growing opposition in the ranks of the government to the idea of a general election in June, and alternatively September, 1929, is suggested as the best time.

Critics point out that an early summer election is difficult mainly because of the parliamentary business to be transacted.

CHANCE TO REAP REVENGE MAY BE OFFERED PETERS

Two years ago a missed kick for the extra point after touchdown gave Ohio State a 7-6 victory over Illinois. Frosty Peters missed the point for Illinois. The Illini and Buckeyes meet in their annual game on Nov. 24 and Peters hopes to get a chance to make up for that miscue of two years ago. He will be at quarterback for Bob Zuppke and ready to drop-kick extra points and field goals in this game. A close-up and action shot of Peters are shown here.

Dempsey-Tunney Fight Pictures Playing "Return"

Tex Rickard's official motion pictures of the Dempsey-Tunney boxing contest at Soldier's Field in Chicago last year, is being shown on the current bill at the Delft theatre. The picture was booked at the Delft a few weeks after the fight and played to matinee audiences one day but was withdrawn from the program until it status, with the federal government, was settled. Believing that boxing fans were still interesting slow-motion "shots" of the alleged long count on Tunney in the seventh round. It will be shown at the Delft again today.

Because no fish were caught in four hours the angling match of the Shefford and District Angling Association's contest in England was called off recently.

SAINTS EXPECT GOOD SEASON

Coach Gleich Has Material for Building Up Strong Quint

With four regulars from last season's squad back and a promising group of new candidates, the prospects are that St. Joseph's high school will have a strong quintet this season, which opens on Nov. 30 with a game with Munising at the Alger county seat.

Coach Gordon Gleich is putting the first string squad through daily workouts, and reports they are coming along in good shape. Coach Leo Brunelle is in charge of the Reserves squad of 15 players, and a schedule is now being drawn up to include games with the Reserve quintets of Gladstone and Escanaba high schools, Garden, Trenary and other schools.

Jack Fitzharris, speedy forward, and Moreau, a hard playing center, have been lost to the Parochial school by graduation last June, but Coach Gleich still has Kholman, Vandenboom, Mileski and Skopp as a nucleus about which to build a strong team. "Red" Clarke, Rowan Fitzharris, Ed Frasher and Herbert Scheriff, who saw considerable action last season as substitutes, are showing great improvement and are battling with the veterans for a place on the regular squad. Some of the likely material available from last season's Reserves team include O'Donnell, Demar and Burlesson Fitzharris.

Dublin—Ireland has been largely denuded of its trees, and the Free State government is interesting itself seriously in the question of re-afforestation. This year it is planting seven million trees, roughly, two thousand to the acre, in several counties, and its record of planting already reaches a total of twenty-seven million trees, all planted since 1922.

Billy Southworth Will Manage 1929 Cardinals

BY KENNETH H. CLARK
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

St. Louis, Nov. 21—(AP)—Billy Southworth, one of the heroes of the world's champion St. Louis Cardinals of 1926 and an idol of St. Louis fandom, today was named to manage the team in 1929.

Southward will be Cards' fifth manager in five years and the youngest and only playing manager in the National league. He is 34 years old. Bucky Harris, Detroit pilot, is two years Southworth's junior and the only other playing manager in the two major circuits.

In naming Southworth, one of the most popular players who ever donned a Cardinal uniform, President Sam Breadon said he expected him to inject more fight and stricter discipline in the Cardinal team, which under managership of William McKechnie won the league pennant this year but lost four straight to the Yankees in the world's series.

Record Hard to Beat

McKechnie will exchange places with Southworth, who managed Rochester, N. Y., a Cardinal farm, and led it to championship of the International league this year. Breadon praised McKechnie's ability.

When Southworth arrived this morning from his home at Columbus, Ohio, Breadon congratulated him upon his landslide victory in a newspaper straw vote and said he was glad to cast the deciding ballot.

"It's a great pleasure to return to St. Louis as leader of the great Cardinal team," he said. "It's pretty hard to beat their record of two pennants and a world's championship in three years, but I believe the fans have good reason to expect the team to remain at or near the top.

The new leader declared he would play right field if able to hit as he did at Rochester, where he batted above .350.

Calumet & Hecla Reflects Better Red Metal Demand

Boston (AP)—Calumet & Hecla Consolidated Copper company, leading producer in the Lake Superior copper mining district, has been benefited this year by the highest copper prices in several years and the improved technical position of the industry, with stocks on hand reduced to a minimum.

The company's net income for the first nine months of this year totalled $1,904,360, which is equal to 95 cents a common share, in contract to $272,227 or 14 cents a share in the corresponding period of last year. Dividends of 50 cents a share had been paid quarterly for two years until the current quarter, when a payment of $1 was declared.

The present company was formed five years ago through consilodation with the Ahmeek, Allouez, Centennial Copper, and Osceola Consolidated Mining companies. Production has been speeded this year, and costs have been reduced through a new ore-treating process. A new smelting furnace is under construction at Calumet, Mich.

Extinction Of Alaska's Salmon Industry Prevented by Science

Washington (AP)—Science apparently has saved the great salmon industry of Alaska, which a few years ago was threatened with extinction.

Its function has been the discovery of facts about this picturesque and valuable fish to provide a sound basis for regulations which will preserve it as a great food resource and make possible the accurate forecasting of the annual runs a year or more in advance.

The years of patient effort have not ended by any means, but Commissioner Henry O'Malley of the bureau of fisheries, after spending the summer in Alaska, the last outpost of the American salmon fishery, has returned with the most encouraging evidence of success he has yet obtained.

The salmon runs were much larger than expected, he says, and the canners were able to pack about 5,750,000 cases as compared with the recent annual average of 5,000,000. Much more important from the standpoint of salmon which escaped into the streams and on up the rapids and over waterfalls to their spawning beds was the largest for any season since the work was undertaken.

Mr. O'Malley has spent each summer in Alaska since the bureau was given broad powers for control of the fishery in a special act of congress in 1924. The policy has been to allow the $60,000,000 canning industry to take as many fish as possible while assuring a sufficient escapement—not less than 50 per cent of the total runs—to provide adequate spawning to build up and maintain future runs. Until this was begun, fishing was so intensive at many points that the annual runs were declining rapidly or had already reached a point close to extinction.

The scientific work was begun for the bureau in 1921 by Dr. Charles H. Gilbert of Stanford university and, has been carried on by Dr. Willis H. Rich, chief salmon investigator of the bureau and a staff of assistants. They have already established many of the most significant facts in the life histories of each of the five species of salmon, all of which die immediately after depositing their eggs in the gravel along the banks of streams and lakes at the headwaters of rivers.

Probably the most important of these facts is the determination that each spawning bed is the home of one race of salmon and is never used by any other. The young salmon hatched there spends its early period of growth in the deep fresh water nearby and then proceeds downstream to the sea, not to be seen again until it has reached maturity. When it is ready to deposit its own eggs and die, it speeds back to its birthplace and will spawn nowhere else.

By studying the scales of many thousands of fish, the scientists have learned the ages at which the various species reach maturity, these varying from two to seven years. With this information and other data, they hope to be able to estimate the number of fish to be expected in a given season from the number which escaped to the spawning beds two to seven years earlier.

At a recent convention in Manchester, England, of municipalities in Great Britain owning their transportation systems, the 84 cities represented had invested in lines a total of $4,150,000,000, employed 87,000 people and last year carried 4,392,000,000 passengers.
